G.H.S. Beats Herbor Springs In Opener

Grayling High School's basket ball team copped its first victory of the new season with a 19 to 5 decision over the Harbor Springs tossers. At the same time the Green and White gained some measure of revenge for a defeat at the start of last season, and the Grayling five celebrated Thanksgiving, even though a day late, in a manner that was highly satisfactory. The Harbor Reserves grabbed off a 21 to 6 decision from a Grayling second string that failed to click.

It was a real ball club that Coach Cornell sent out to do battle with his home town representatives. The Green and White team played as a team, passing the ball around in fine style, and really giving their opponents little chance. Even though they missed plenty of scoring chances the count stood 11-1 at the half. At the end of the thirty-two minutes of action Harbor had found the hoop for but one field goal, so The Grayling third quarter was a proreless affair, and made it look much more like a ball game as Harbor did a bit of climbing. But it was out of their power to close the gap and the final margin was pretty decisive. Watson of Kalkaska carried the whistle into action in his first local appearance The Reserve game wasn't a very thrilling affair. The local team failed to put up a battle to do themselves justice, and the Harbor rookies copped the laurels. Ken Gothro refereed. Outscored three baskets to nine from field and no free tosses to three the Grayling Reserves didn't get so far. The Grayling first string shot five free throws out of seven, and shot seven field goals to Brower's one for the Harbor.

200000 STATE OF THE PARTY.

December is the month around which rotates the plans for final adjustments of a year just passing and the making of a new year program which always gives one renewed energy and hope of greater achievements. Regrets mingle with joys and dissatisfaction joins hands with genuine pride for successes made.

This season is at hand and this community will grasp the spirit of Merry Christmas and Happy New Year with old-fashioned enthusiasm. To the children it means the arrival of Santa Claus with his reindeer and a load of toys, candies and nuts. To young people it is gayety; dancing, skating, parties and gifts. But to mother and dad it is the joy of the home circle, with the family seated around the dinner table-carefree and jovial, many Christmases to look forward to, many New Years to plan for.

Grayling has always been very generous. The true spirit of Christmas has prevailed. For many years the Goodfellowship club passed out baskets of food and clothing to the less fortunate families. Later this work was sponsored by the Woman's Club charity committee. The Masonic Order spent time and money making all the children of the town happy with food and toys. The K. of P. lodge gave banquets, with tables that groaned with good things and every young girl and boy was included in the party. The four churches, St. Mary's, Danish-Lutheran, Michelson Memorial, and Free Methodist have given entertainments as well as sweets so that each and every child might feel the joy of the Christ spirit.

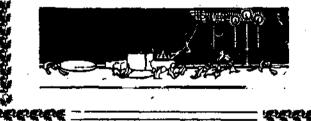

The City Council provides a community tree each year which gleams with colored lights, pouring out a welcome to visitors as they return for the holiday season.

While there are always small, private parties, the one big ball has, of late, been given for the benefit of Mercy Hospital. This year the ball will be given on Thursday evening, December 27.

Our merchants are ready, no doubt, with new stocks of Christmas goods that will be displayed very soon.

Shoppers are preparing lists which include grandma and grandpa and on down to the baby. Let's do our shopping early.

Begin now to give your home a festive appearance with Christmas decorations and help make Grayling the merriest Christmas town in the state.--Merry Christmas.

Recreation Program For Crawford County

The State of Michigan through the S.E.R.A. is endeavoring to interest the adults of Crawford county in a leisure time recreation program. The activities are wide and varied. They include physical activities such as basketball, volleyball, indoor baseball, etc. The social activities will include drame, hobbies, handicraft, plays, vocal music, dancing, and any other group activity what the community desires. Through the kindness of the school authorities these activities will be housed a the Graying High school.

The activities shall not be class es of instruction as much as the shall be social gatherings, con cucted by the seaders of the group themselves with the aid and cooperation of the recreation directors chosen for this community Miss Maxine Meilstrop duct the social and dramatics groups. Mr. Russell Robertson Will carry on the physical

This program is absolutely fre and is open to all over sixteen and not in school. Any information can be obtained from either directors or the supervisor at the county welfare office.

There will be an open discussion meeting in the High school Friday, December 7, at 7:30 p. m. At this time groups will be organized. Everyone is urged to come and bring your friends. Suggestions and comments as to the needs in recreation for this community are respectfully solicited.

The directors are endeavoring to establish such a program in each community throughout the county. Tuesday evening a good sized group met at the building when a meeting was called for the men folk. Tonght a similar meeting is being held in Frederic.

Use of Biology In The Kitchen

LOCAL INSTRUCTOR WRITES OF BIOLOGY IN THE KITCHEN

The following article was published in the October Home Economics News Letter--published by the Michigan Home Economics Association. It is the plan of the Home Economics Departments of the state to correlate other subjects with Home Economics, Biology is the related subject for first year Home Economics, and Related Arts for second year Home Economics. The following article was written by F. L. Bond, teacher of Biology at Grayling High School

Biology in the Kitchen.

The statement "Biology in the Kitchen" reveals no startling facts to one versed in either modern cookery or an ardent student of science. No loaf of bread is ever baked, no moal is ever prepared, no food is ever consumed which does not show the scientific relationship between the study of plants and animals and the use of them in our kitchens. Behind each mouthful of food we eat, each shovelful of coal or stick of wood we burn, each thread of cloth we wear lies a story far more interesting than any plot worked out on a movie screen. To unrave! the story of these things that we use to maintain ourselves is really more interesting and more entic ing an adventure than any lucrative novel. What is more enlightenng than to watch the plants and animals in the struggle for existence so similar to our own. Their whole life seems unpremeditated as it is to be lived for mankind who, with the exception of superiority, sense of reasoning and thought, is not unlike a plant or an animal, and is able to exist only where other life is found. Last fall our State Supervisor made a suggestion which I considered an excellent idea-prime arily, to make the fall work in the related science course cover mostly a study of how plants and animals prepare for winter and how mankind benefits by these acts of nature. I immediately revised my program and, although we were well into the fall season, we began to relate the storing of food by living plants and animals in accordance with the canning and drying of foodstuffs by man for the winter. The work proved interesting to the students. aroused their enthusiasm to know more about the life around them. The study of life in nature began to establish itself once and for all, in the home—in the kitchen, and even in the parlot through reading and other desirable uses of leisure time. That approach to the kitchen and home through Biology was a new one to me. I have already. laid plans for a more extensive program along the same idea which I hope to be able to use in the time to come.

Far too many have need nature's warning in regard to modern twentieth century method of living. Might it not be that good old Mother Nature has ssued us a severe and, we hope, lasting warning during these last four trying years? Surely it has driven multitudes back to the farms, the land from whence they Many more in the small towns and villages are actually producing the very things which they prepare in their kitchens than buy "ready-made" at the corner grocery store. The now magic word "land" once more come again into its own—the root of all prosperity, the stabilizer of the world. The age old maxim "We must get back to Nature to live" is bearing out again.

To further stimulate constructive ideas along this line, there is no better plan than the Home Economics course of our high schools. Too little thought his been given to how and where get the necessities of life, of which food, fuel, and protection are perhaps the most important. Each student of the Home Economics course should know the history and origin of the materials she works with. Here, again, Biology plainly shows its nean-ing-"The Study of Life."

It is my hope that every student in my science classes, as well as others interested, work out a project to last during the summer months in which Nature at work can really be ob-Gardening, I believe,

Any girl interested in Home Econ. omics should know how to plan and produce a balanced garden in proportion to the size of the family. During the summer this provides an occupation wholly constructive, and gainful in its

A gardening project serves threefold purpose. It familiarizes the worker with the plants of his or her diet. It offers splendid opportunity to watch Nature at Work. And last but not least, it is a constructive way of using an abundant amount of leasure time. This last point alone, I firmly believe, is worth all the time, money and effort any science department or school could possibly put in such work. To be busy at some constructive occupation necessary thing today for our youth. A visit to one of our juvenile reform institutions impresses upon us the great need by the youth of today—the correct use of leisure time.

There is no better time the present for science to lead the way to a stronger and safer and healthier nation. The strength and stability of our country in the leaders of tomorrow. rather than the leaders of yesterday, or even today. An idle population gives forth few who can show the way and judge for the best, because there are few of us who will follow an idle path

Our schools are over-crowded, our teaching forces pared down to the limit, and our curriculum is but a sad remainder of what it once was-and should be. Taxed as we are, with over-crowded schools, fewer teachers, smaller funds, and no spare time for individual work, our children are getting nothing more than a "poor deal" out of education these The boy or girl finds time on his hands, excess energy to work off—and nothing offered to go into. Even the American woman or man does not have sufficient outlet for stored up, brewing energy. Energy under control. like fire, is man's best belper, but, out of control energy quickly reverts to man's worst enemy.

Let us first borrow that war saying "Now is the time for every good citizen to come to the aid of his country"-and let us change it a bit: "Now is the time for every good citizen to come to the aid of Nature." Nature sets our Nature sets our tables, heats our homes, provides us with shelter, and extends to us opportunities and ways to release the pent-up energy that is bound to come out, constructively or destructively.

Let every Biology teacher adopt this as his motto: "Biology in the kitchen means a stronger nation for those of tomorrow.

The underlying principle behind the Administration's relief projects has resulted in the government taking from those who have in the form of taxes, and giving those who have not, in the form of public works projects and direct relief. It is the old principle whipped into action, that the laborer is worthy of his hire; more than that, he is worthy of the necessities of life when no employer has work for his hands

While this has been helpful in staving off starvation and despair, it is admittedly only a makeshift justifiable only because of nature of the emergency.

Unexpectedly, it is industry, than government, which comes forward with the first really constructive program plan-ned to take care of the man who is unemployed through no fault of his own.

P. W. Litchfield, able president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, made a proposal recently to the Southern Division of the United States Chamber of Commerce that is far-reaching in its social significance. He proposes a national unemployment insurance plan that would cushion the shock of sudden widespread unemploy-Employes and employer would both contribute to the plan in good times making unneces sary the use of public funds in bad times. Administration of the plan would be in federal hands.

Mr. Litchfield's reasoning on the matter is clear and lucid. He showed that we protect ourselves against fire and sudden death through the institution of insur-ance. Why not use the same principle to stave off the ill effects of unemployment?

The sound common sense of the suggestions are found in the efforts to eliminate the untold misery, the frantic appeal for charity funds, the vicious circle of reduced buying power and increased unemployment that a recurrence of the collapse of 1929 would

Friday, Dec. 7, the first second teams will journey to East Jordan when the Red and Black will once again take on the Green White of Grayling.

The East Jordan team is a tough outfit, equal if not superior to the team of last year. Although the green and white have had a letdown during their practices since their victory over Harbor Springs last Friday, Coach Cornell is confident that they will bring the colors through to victory.

Miss Berry's public speaking class entertained the high school last Wednesday afternoon with lively program.

George Lietz, master, of cere monies, opened the program by introducing to us the "General Manager" of the Suspender Company (Don Carron) and its "stan salesman" (Sam Gust), with dis-astrous results. When they had finished approximately ten minutes of clowning the crowd was, as the saying goes, "rolling in the saying nisles." Poems were read by Elizabeth Craus and Charles Corwin. Roger Kneff solemnly related one of the ones for which he has achieved county-wide fame.

The assembly wound up with a smashing hit but on by LeRoy Pailing, Alex Kocnanowski, and Pailing. Harvey Reagan. These boys kep the house in an uproar with a con tinuous fire of wise-cracks and jokes aimed at everyone in gen oral and several in particular.

Log Office Getting Out Tourist Guide

Begins Plans For Booklet.

Though hotels, cottages, camp grounds and bathing beaches are closed for the winter and the coming summer season is farthest from most people's thoughts, the Log Office rolls faithfully on laying plans for what it hopes will e another banner year in 1986.

Paramount among the 1935 plans is the Tourist Guide. As formerly, the booklet will be a thorough-going, complete, detailed piece of literature. Each year nowever, some innovation is troduced that marks the Guide distinct and different from those issued in the past.

The outstanding feature of the 1935 book will be a four-color process plate of eight of the Michigan game and pan fish to occupy two-page center section. The fish layout involves the expenditure of a considerable sum money but in lieu of the fact that the project has never been undertaken with such accuracy it is relieved it will prove decidedly oppealing and worthwhile. chooled outdoor artist has been engaged for the undertaking. He roduces his drawings from live niodels provided by the conservaion department.

As an added feature the Tourist Association is going to make it possible for specially adapted counties to carry a four-color plate lure map of their territory on which would be shown the recreational appeals of that particular section.

Inquiry Study Shows Results.

An advertising representative into the Log Office the other day claiming he could produce three times as many inquiries if were turned the EMTA account over to him. Asked for a guarintee, however, he hedged.

Each year the Tourist Association makes a survey of its in-quiries and the results they produce, among other things termining how much each costs.

so much interested in the cost per inquiry as the business turns in dollars and cents. From its records the Log Office can at time give a reasonably fair anj estimate of the amount of money brought into this section by the ummer trade.

The records show that from the jusiness stimulated by advertisng the state realized upwards of $150,000 in sales tax paid by the visitors alone. In other words, he $100.000 appropriated by the Legi-lature to advertise Michigan was nothing more than a good investment which showed very appreciable dividends when the summer ended.

The judge's feet dropped to the floor and he swong bis chair to face the entrance.

The sheriff stated his errand, the compialnt was drawn. Nicholas Brandon affixed his signature and then for the first time Able looked close ly into the face of the defendant.

It was a long and searching look and was met stendlly by a pair of clear steel-gray eyes.

"Are you guilty or not?" Able cepeated and Ben Elliott who had stood at ease before him, slouch hat in his great brown bands, gave his bead a grave twist. "Well, if pitching a man off the sidewalk into the mud is called as-

James Taggart, address known, is at Mercy Hospital due to injuries received Monday afternoon when hit by a car on the U.S. highway just south of Grayling. Taggart, who was walking south and pushing a cart, was struck by Mrs. Dan Hoadley, of East Lansing. In trying to avoid hitting the man her car swerved and skidded, striking the cart and knocking him down. The car con-tinued to skid until it init a sand pile at the side of the road and overturned. Mrs. Hoadley escaped uninjured and Miss Lena Sprye. the other occupant of the car received minor injuries.

Beginning December 20th the Avalanche will add a new feature for the interest of its women readers. This is a cooking school in 12 lessons prepared by the recognized food authority Katherine Caldwell, who has devoted her best efforts to its preparation. Measured by their true importance, no other talent known to women compares to that of being a good cook. Some women are accomplished in being a good musician, a good golfer, a clever business girl or a smart bridge player but a good gook, this means sales. Mr. Speicher says their most of all. Supplementary to the plant is not selling beer as yet 12 lessons Katherine Caldwell has but in April it will be on sale. He prepared three books, which every-one will find indispensable. These one will and indispension, these are "The Easy Way Cake Book", "Planning the Party" and "Marketing and Meat Planning."
We are selling all three books for 25c. Avalanche Office.
